

These Strange Creatures

These strange creatures with no fur who separated me from my family, leaving me alone and frightened These strange creatures with only two legs who make me stop and wonder how they stay balanced These strange creatures with an odd language that they always speak who hush me when I speak mine These strange creatures who scold me when I disobey but it's okay, I understand These strange creatures with loving hearts and gentle hands who welcomed me into their home with open arms These strange creatures who I have come to love dearly are not so strange anymore
