

Anger
a sonnet

The eternal fire burns in my soul
Throwing everything in my path away
At that moment I am not in control
Because I forget what I did that day

Insults and mockery, sniping at me
Making me escape my haven at once
Finally corruption has got me angry
My anger makes you a foolish dunce

In the end, you have been taught a lesson
One you will never forget
After time passes and your life lessens
You will feel the burning of your regret

The time comes when you figure out your crimes
Oh you're too late because you ran out of time

Submitted by Rassim C.