

Many times in your life you experience events that other people wouldn't imagine. For example you witness extreme things that people think as fiction, like something that is scary a life or Death experience or when you feel a presence, or just know that something is gonna happen, sometimes it does happen, you see something no one has ever seen before and they don't believe you. People see spirits as they were when they died. Bloody and creep things they are. Some people believe and some other don't. Do you believe? What will happen if you are faced with them?
