

on a personal level

changing is an imperative for human life.
change is one thing that everyone hates but it's everyone's duty to live with.
that is why I hate it.
sure it has its fruits... but dang, just think about the process people have to go through to reap its benefits.
everyone has to go through the systematic bottom to top process
to really see the good thing about it.
no skipping, no free pass to cut the line...
everyone starts from its worst first stage to its best final ending.
today; starts memorial day weekend 2008.
